Industrial Emergencies for Municipal-Based Responders

The Industrial Emergencies for Municipal-Based Responders program (IEMBR) trains municipal firefighters to handle industrial and other non-traditional emergencies.

Phase II, the practical hands on exercises introduce and reinforce the tactical methods required to mitigate an industrial emergency incident.

Overview

Phillips 66 is proud to partner with TEEX to provide specialized training in industrial pipeline emergencies for 33 community and volunteer firefighters. We stand alongside our first responders, recognizing the importance of ensuring they have the necessary training to stay prepared. As part our commitment to being responsible neighbors, this investment reflects our dedication to supporting the communities where we operate. Helping first responders remains a key focus of our charitable giving program. We look forward to seeing you there.

Course

IND029 Phase II —Training takes place on TEEX Brayton Fire Training Field in College Station, Texas. See Phase II course information.
